Subject: A1(1) Hong Kong is an inalienable part of China

    Move To:

When the Chinese and British government agreed on the future of Hong Kong in 1984, it is without any doubt in any one's mind that Hong Kong becomes an inalienable part of China as of July 1, 1997; as she should be. We must accept this fact and not even debating its validity

Subject: A1(2) HKSAR comes directly under the CPG

    Move To:

Hong Kong is a part of the Chinese government's jurisdiction, albeit its special status granted under the Basic Law which only guarantees certain self administrative procedures that are to be handled by the Hong Kong people. We must understand clearly what are the special privileges granted to us under the Basic Law before over stepping the Central Government. Wherever there are gray areas, we must seek clarification with the CPG and resolve any conflicts of interests in a peaceful and articulate manner. We should know better confronting the CPG will not get us anywhere. But reasons and common sense will prevail as the CPG has our interests at heart as well.

Subject: A1(3) The Chief Executive (CE) is appointed by the CPG. He is accountable to both the CPG and the HKSAR

    Move To:

A sovereign state has its right to appoint its officials. With the case of Hong Kong, it is especially sensitive that the Chief Executive is someone appointed by the CPG because only then can the CPG have a peace of mind. Hong Kong had been a colony for over a hundred years. Hong Kong people are as strangers to the CPG as are the Martians to Earth. The CPG must have someone they can trust in order to ensure the Basic Laws are followed.

Hong Kong people must accept the fact that it will take the CPG time to know us better and to ascertain our loyalty. We have to understand the concerns and apprehensions of the CPG, and not the other ways around.

Subject: A2(1) What should 'actual situation' constitute

    Move To:

What is actual situation?

Facts of today are:

- . Hong Kong is enjoying as much freedom as any Western democracies; i.e. freedom of speech, personal movements and trade and commerce, social mobilities, protection by the law, access to education, medical care, social welfare, etc.
 - . we don't have universal suffrage
 - . our CE and Legco are elected by colleges of fuctional constituencies.
 - . our governing bodies are not subject to change by the will of the people via periodic general elections
- So the actual situation the way we see it is in the foreseeable future, the existing system works to the satisfaction of most people in Hong Kong. The actual situation constitutes the way of life we have been enjoying since 1997 and that life style is no worse than that before 1997, excluding the financial decline that is beyond our control.

Subject: A2(2) How 'gradual and orderly progress' should be understood

    Move To:

We need a specific timetable that is agreed to by the CPG. Of course, it has to be realistic and practical. We have to consider the democratic progress in China; our own pace of reform some what dovetailed into their timetable as well.

    Move To:

The middle class must be the engine of any prosperous and stable society. We must look after all sectors of society but in the end without a successful middle class we risk to loose all.

We have been doing well under the free market system. Any movement to a socialistic economy with government dishing out welfare indiscriminately will collapse our well-being.
