Subject:Al(1) Hong Kong is an inalienable part of China

     Move To:

Sir,

1. The following in the government must hold no residence rights in other countries and must hold SAR passports:

a. All Administrative officers from AO up to department heads and permanent secretaries (The EXCO members and "Principal Officers" already have no foreign residence);

b. All civil servants of directorate grade 1 (D1) or above who are Chinese citizens as defined under the Chinese Nationality Law as elaborated in " the interpretation of Chinese Nationality Law when applying in the HKSAR" passed by the Standing Committee of the National People's Congress of the Chinese Government on 15 May 1996 That is, some expatriates are allowed to stay particularly for the professional grades

c. All heads of statutory bodies

2. All candidates for LEGCO and candidates for CE must declare what passports they have hold since July 1997 (i.e. even if they had given up the passports). This information is for the voters' information in deciding whom to vote for.

Subject: A2(1) What should 'actual situation' constitute

     Move To:

Dear Sir,

"Actual situation" means the majority demand of the public.

Subject:A2(2) How 'gradual and orderly progress' should be understood

    Move To:

Dear Sir,

The process is considered to have started in July 1997, but not from the first legislature after 2007.

Thus the process in the last six years was gradual and orderly, and the public should be allowed to determine what is "gradual and orderly" for the selection for the next CE and next legislature. It could be less 100% direct election for the legislature or universal suffrage. For the CE, it could be direct election to select from several candidates selected by an expanded election committee, or universal suffrage .

    Move To:

Dear Sir,

Universal suffrage is the way to guarantee the interests of everybody, thus different sectors, are reflected.

    Move To:

Dear Sir,

This is ridiculous. What is the problem if the majority of the Hong Kong people choose a socialist system?

Moreover, what Mr JI said is immaterial. It is not law binding. Why do you take this out to ask for opinion?It is a non-issue.
