Subject: II (iii) The Number of Seats Returned by Functional Constituencies

    Move To:

Hi

The Number of seats returned by the Functional Constituencies should at least be doubled to 60 seats, this will effectively prove an "opportunity" for candidates with "opposing" political aspirations to be elected and thus contributes more to rational debates in Parliament.

Moreover,

another suggestion which is NOT in your proposed changes, The Functional Constituencies should form its own HOUSE of PARLIAMENT which is separated from the OTHER HOUSE of PARLIAMENT going along the same line as the Upper House of UK, the Senate of US or Australia. The Functional Constituencies House should always be the House of Review only, it can amend Legislation but not proposed it.
