Dear Sir,

Views on 2007 - 2008 Election, HK

My personal views on the subject are summarized as follows:

1. Any suggestion on 2007-2008's Direct Election is considered immature.
2. Even if HK has come to a consensus of such a general election, the Government should liaise with the Central and seek the understanding and agreement from Beijing before any change of electoral system should put in place.
3. Our Government should put more efforts to improve our local economy as well as general residents' living quality and environment instead of wasting too many efforts on our Chief Executive's Election.
4. Whatever the future election will be, it should not harm the relations between HK and China.

As a local born Chinese, it is my wish to see prosperous HK and a strong China. Any political change in HK should change in a smooth and gradual path. Most important of all, not to create any crash with Beijing. No matter how, yet and still, HK is a part of China. I don't want to see HK goes into a situation where, as many "not-so-clean" politicians has asked, stand up to China. What for?

Regards!
Eddie, Lo
