May I add my voice the the increasing number of residents in Hong Kong that believe that universal suffrage is the way forward for Hong Kong.

I am not anti-Chinese (Mainland) though I am strongly anti-communist. I am also strongly anti-right wing. I am a moderate democrat who was lucky enough to grow up in a democracy with full voting rights. The people of Hong Kong will not come of age until they are given one man one vote and can elect their leaders rather than having them forced upon them by a small elitist group of self interested shoe shiners.

None of Hong Kong's political parties has yet come of age and is competant enough to manage state affairs but the longer we delay the harder it will be for them and the less confidence the world will have in Hong Kong and all that it stands for.
